The place tapas were made for. With its enticing list of Spanish wines by the glass and tasty, inventive bites, plates and hearty stews, this bar and bistro at Mercer Hotel Barcelona reminds us of the true, original purpose of tapas: to act as a worthy companion during a night of quality drinking. With its sandstone walls, wood beams and untreated planks, its simple tables and stools, Le Bouchon certainly has that homey, Barrio Gótico vibe too. What's more, with well priced dishes like octopus and potato or creamy mushrooms with foie, you'll leave satisfied without leaving a hole in your wallet.
